

The Language Conservancy (TLC) partners with endangered language communities around the world. We provide technical assistance for community language preservation efforts. TLC helps create curriculum materials to support educational programmes. We also provide assistance in writing grants for project development support.

The Language Conservancy specializes in providing technical, pedagogical, and linguistic resources for language revitalization programmes. We can help develop dictionaries, grammars, language learning textbooks, picture books, electronic and digital products such as online multimedia dictionaries, mobile apps, and keyboards.

What Our Worldwide Partners Say

Janine Pease, Coordinator
Crow Summer Institute, Montana, USA

"It became apparent we needed the Language Consortium here on the ground. The Summer Institute has brought our teachers together and increased their expertise exponentially. We've built a group of professional Crow language educators that didn't exist before."

Bernadine Young Bird, Coordinator
MHA Summer Institute, North Dakota, USA

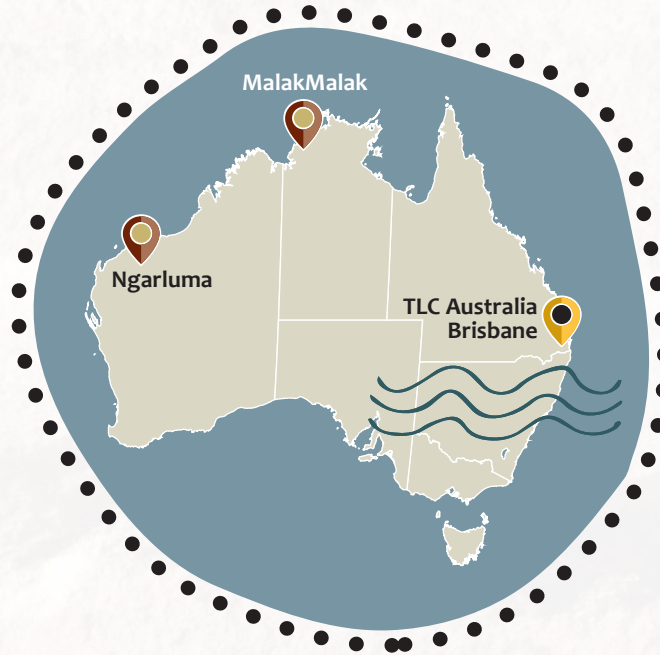

"Working with The Language Conservancy has been an eye opener. Lately our people are really excited about the apps developed by the Language Conservancy. That's what our new learners need. TLC has the technical skills and linguistic expertise we need."

Stanley Holder, Executive Director
Acoma Board of Education, New Mexico, USA

"Tribal membership realized we were rapidly losing the language. We had to take a more systematic approach to language preservation and revitalization. That's what The Language Conservancy provides. Working with them has been heartwarming."

Vida Stabler, Program Director
Umó'ho[®] Language and Cultural Center, Nebraska, USA

"Our tribal members and educational institutions were struggling to create teaching materials. By working with the Language Conservancy on textbooks, audio CDs and the Summer Institute, we've taken a big step forward."
